Cost of a Fire House.

The fire committee of the East Orange City Council has had plans submitted by several architects in competition for the new engine house to be erected on Park avenue between 19th and 20th streets, and last week decided in favor of those submitted by Hobart A. Walker. This building is somewhat of a departure from the ordinary conception of a municipal engine house, as it is distinctly suburban and picturesque in character, and is designed for its particular location, a parkway flanked by dwelling houses of high grade, and of suburban character. If carried out as shown in the architect's sketch it will surely be an ornament to the neighborhood and will be in no way a detriment, although there has been some objection on the part of adjoining property owners to its being built there.

The building is designed in the English half-timbered style, the first story being of brick with stone trimmings, and the second story of Portland cement stucco on rough brick-work with chestnut trim. The roof will be green slate. The building is 30x70 feet on a lot 50x200 feet.

Special attention has been given to facility of the fire service and the comfort and convenience of the men. The apparatus room is 28x51 feet and is entirely unobstructed, the stairs being placed in a projecting wing, which allows of a gable treatment on the side, thus breaking the monotony of a long, narrow building. There will be room for a hook and ladder, engine and light wagon, and stall accommodations for five horses.

On the second story there will be a well lighted and ventilated dormitory in front, 19x28 feet. Back of this will be a foreman's room 10x24 feet and a recreation room 14x24 feet with an eight-foot open fireplace, and abundant light. There will also be a locker room 8x11 feet and a large bathroom and toilet. The space over the stable will be used for hay and grain storage. The building will cost complete including equipment, $20,000.

Death of Conductor Collison.

William Collison, sixty-one years old, a passenger train conductor on the Lackawanna Railroad for thirty years, died at his home, 20 North Willow street, Montclair, Monday afternoon, of heart trouble, after an illness of a year. For a time Collison was a freight conductor, and later ran one of the fast trains on the main line. Of late years he had charge of one of the local trains on the Montclair branch. He was well known in railroad circles.

Broken Trolley Wire.

A pyrotechnical display caused by a broken trolley wire amused and interested a large crowd of people Sunday evening at the Centre. The wire broke at the junction of the Bloomfield avenue and the Broad street trolley lines. It emitted showers of brilliant sparks, and wound and unwound like a snake. It struck the old Iron fountain in the Centre and rebounded on the track and the crowd scattered. Policemen Shorter and the trolley-employees were kept busy keeping people away from the wire until the arrival of the repair wagon.
